Drayton Rutherford Chapter.

CHARGE TO GRAND JURY

Brief Synopsis of Charge of Special Judge McLeod to Grand Jury at Opening of Court.

Judge McLeod stated in his charge to the grand jury that after having spent a pleasant week in Newberry in the court of common pleas, he was glad to open the general session court. He stated that he did not have any extraordinary suggestions or charge to make at this term of the court, as he presumed the conditions and affairs of the county were in good shape, that nothing had been called to his attention and no special request had been made to him.

His honor further stated that there were certain things which the court might, with propriety, direct the grand jury's attention, those things which go in a general way to make up peace and good order of a community at large. He said that our court houses are clearing houses of society, that last week during the common pleas court the business of the county which the citizens were unable to adjust among themselves was taken up and this week affairs which society at large is unable to adjust anywhere else except in court.

The court further stated that time was when the sheriff of the county was looked upon as a hangman, but now when you walk down the street and meet policemen clothed in uniform and badge of authority, we ought to regard, and children ought to be taught to regard, not as an executive of the law, but as one who stands as a badge of protection.

His honor further stated that we are largely an agricultural county and in order that the people in the county may live as safely as those in the towns in many of the counties of the state there has been established what is known as rural police and Newberry county should have rural police to the extent that it is necessary.

His honor charged the jury very fully as to the rural police, stating that the idea that they were collectors of revenues was entirely wrong.

The court further charged the jury that they had the care and supervision of all the county affairs, as to seeing that the roads are kept in proper condition and so on. He said that he had occasion to go over some of the roads in the county recently and found that in a good many places they were in good condition.

The court further said that there are certain crimes which more directly affect society than perhaps any others, stating among these the crime of adultery and that the jury should, if called to their attention, bring the persons before them, no matter what his or her standing is.

Presentment of Grand Jury.

State of South Carolina,
County of Newberry.
To His Honor Judge Thomas G. McLeod, Presiding:

We, the grand jury for Newberry county at the sitting of this term of court wish to make the following presentments of such matters as has been brought before us for our consideration:

First. We wish to express to the judge presiding our appreciation and thanks for his charge and instructions.

We have examined and audited the books of the county supervisor, county superintendent of education and county treasurer and found the books neatly kept and in a first class condition. We have examined the offices and books of all the other county offices and find them neatly kept and all work well done and up to date. Have examined the books of the county magistrates and find them well kept and complying with the law.

We find the county home and jail well cared for and kept in a sanitary condition so far as the conditions and appurtenances will allow. There are conditions existing at the jail which is the fault of the construction of the building and its fitting, which we deplore, but see no way clear at this time to correct them, without our state delegation in its wisdom and forethought can give us relief either by material changes in the present jail building, or, which would be, in our judgment, far better, give us a new and modern jail building near the court house.

We have received committees making complaints as to county roads and work and have same under advisement.

We have passed on all bills presented to us and have returned same to the court.

We wish to commend the sheriff and his deputies for their diligence, and all the officers of the county for their faithful and efficient work.

We recommend that our clerk be paid the usual fee.

Haskell Wright,

Foreman Grand Jury.

Church of the Redeemer.

(Rev. Edward Fulenwider, Pastor.) Nothing preventing, the following will be the program of divine services at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer next Sunday.

10:15 a. m., the Sunday school meets. This will be "promotion day" in the school, and all scholars are urged to be present. The offering will be for the orphan home.

11:15 a. m., the morning service. Being the day for the "every member canvass," the pastor will preach a special sermon on the subject, "The Keys to the Treasury," that every man and woman who desires to do something in God's great business in the world should hear.

4 p. m., the catechetical school will meet in the church. There will be classes and teachers for all who attend.

7:30 p. m., the evening service of song and prayer. The pastor will preach a short, practical sermon on "Three Great Needs in Life That God Richly Supplies." There is not a man or woman living on the earth but that needs these three things, and there is not one living in a Christian land but that may have them. The proof of these statements will be concretely given from the word of God.

There will be good music at all the services. Come and worship with us.

Box Party at Union Academy.

If you want to have a whole lot of fun for a little money just go to the box party at Union academy on Friday night, December 3. Miss Eunice Halfacre, the teacher, says that Mr. M. L. Strauss, the noted auctioneer at such entertainments, has consented to sell the boxes.

The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the school. Everybody is invited to come and the girls are requested to take boxes.
